NOVEMBER 26 - 28, 2025	8:00 AM – 7:00 PM	Criminology Profession Week & Criminology Days	CvSU Bacoor - City Campus Criminology Students, Faculty & Staff	CvSU Bacoor - City Campus Gymnasium

The program officially commenced with the singing of the National Anthem, during which attendees rose to honor the country. This was followed by the delivery of an opening prayer that guided the proceedings and expressed collective hopes for a meaningful, safe, and successful celebration.

The welcoming remarks were delivered by Ma'am Marialyn Dela Cruz, who formally opened the program. In her message, she extended a warm welcome to all attendees and emphasized the importance of unity, participation, and shared commitment to growth, discipline, and community spirit. Her words encouraged everyone to move forward with purpose, work collaboratively, and appreciate the contributions of each individual to the success of school activities. With this inspiring reminder, the program commenced with enthusiasm and gratitude, setting the tone for a meaningful and memorable event.

During the Criminology Day celebration at CvSU Bacoor, Pat, Christian R. Pacoma was invited as a guest speaker to deliver an inspirational message. He encouraged the students to value the rare opportunity of gathering together, recognized their dedication and discipline, and motivated them to remain happy, united, and proud as future law enforcers. He also highlighted that true strength is measured not only by physical ability but by character, respect, and commitment to duty. Furthermore, he expressed his pride in the students' accomplishments and progress, reinforcing the importance of personal and professional development in their journey toward becoming competent law enforcement officers.

After the opening remarks and the delivery of an inspirational message, the program transitioned into the lively Chant and Arko competitions. These activities highlighted the creativity and batch pride of each year level, with performances that showcased unity and distinct talents. Included within the competitions was the presentation of the models for Ms. and Mr. Criminology, who embodied confidence and excellence, adding prestige and inspiration to the spirited displays.

Following the Cheer and Arko competitions, the blood donation activity commenced with an acknowledgment of its purpose and significance. The event brought together volunteers, donors, medical professionals, and community partners united in extending help, offering hope, and making a meaningful impact. It served as a reminder that even a single donation could save multiple lives. Appreciation was expressed to all who participated and supported, as the activity inspired compassion, fostered unity, and reinforced commitment to helping others.

The Alumni vs. Faculty 5x5 Basketball Game was a remarkable showcase of school pride and camaraderie. Both teams demonstrated outstanding teamwork, determination, and sportsmanship, making the match not only competitive but also inspiring. The energy on the court reflected the strong bond within the community, while the support from the audience amplified the spirit of unity.

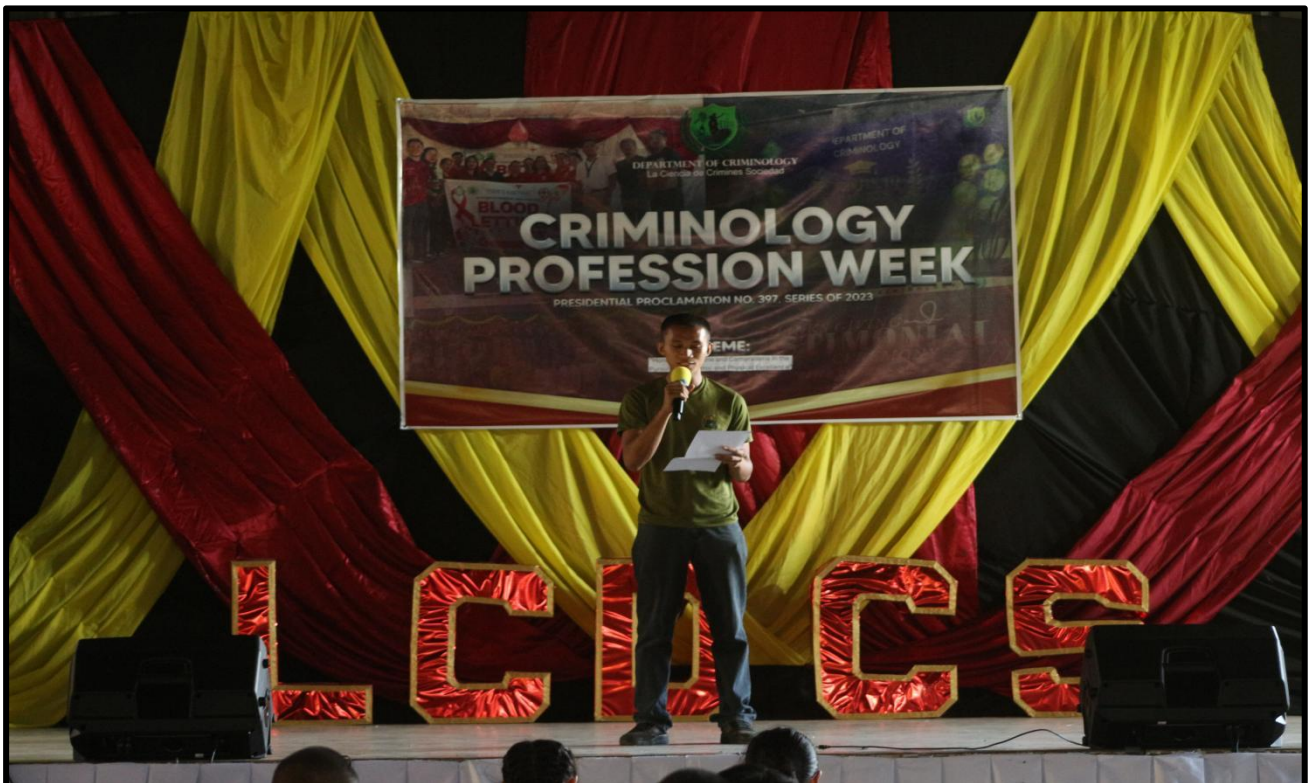

The Criminology Day Bazaar opened with an impressive showcase of diverse and engaging booths. From the thrilling firing and shooting range, the lively food stalls, to the jail booth, bustling food bazaar, and cheerful photo booth, each attraction reflected the creativity, teamwork, and dedication of its organizers.

The afternoon session of Day 1 was highlighted by the Academic Contest, a vibrant showcase of intellect, creativity, and expression. Guided by the theme “Honoring Discipline and Camaraderie in the Pursuit of Academic and Physical Excellence”, students participated in a range of competitions — Essay Writing, Quiz Bee, Poster Making, Debate, and Spoken Poetry — each reflecting the diverse talents and passions within our community. These contests not only challenged participants to think critically and creatively but also celebrated the spirit of learning, collaboration, and school pride that defines Criminology Day.

In the Poster Making Contest, creativity took center stage as students transformed abstract ideas into powerful visuals that spoke volumes. Their artistry and attention to detail highlighted the ability to communicate meaning through design.

Through Spoken Poetry, emotion and artistry blended beautifully as contestants delivered heartfelt performances that captivated the audience. Each piece reflected not only talent but also the courage to express personal truths through poetic form.

The Debate brought passionate voices and well-reasoned arguments into the spotlight, creating an atmosphere of intellectual challenge. Participants demonstrated their ability to think critically and defend perspectives with confidence and clarity.

The excitement carried over to the second day of the event, beginning in the morning with the 5x5 Basketball Tournament for all year levels. It was an exhilarating display of skill, teamwork, and sportsmanship, as players from first-year students to seniors brought energy, determination, and heart to the court. Every game was competitive and thrilling, showcasing not only athletic ability but also the discipline and camaraderie that define Criminology Day. The players' dedication, the coaches' guidance, and the enthusiastic support from the crowd all contributed to making the tournament a memorable highlight of the celebration, strengthening camaraderie and school spirit across all year levels.

In the afternoon of Day 2, the celebration continued with the Criminology Games, a spirited showcase of energy, fun, and teamwork. From Agawan Panyo to Tug of War, the Card Flour Challenge, and Ang Tanong, each activity tested not only skill and strategy but also camaraderie and school spirit, making the games a vibrant highlight of Crim Day.

Tug of War highlighted strength, unity, and resilience as teams pulled together with grit and enthusiasm. The contest became a thrilling display of camaraderie, with each side giving their all.

Card Flour Challenge added a playful twist to the competition, combining focus and creativity with laughter. Participants showed patience and skill, turning the challenge into a lively and entertaining activity.

Agawan Panyo showcased quick thinking, agility, and teamwork as participants raced to outmaneuver their opponents. The energy and determination of every player made the game exciting and full of fun moments.

The most awaited Criminology Party capped off the celebration with joy, unity, and excitement. Embracing the theme “Geng Geng,” the evening brought together students, alumni, and faculty in a lively gathering filled with music, dance, and laughter, creating an atmosphere of pure festivity. The vibrant energy, shared moments, and enthusiastic participation made the party a fitting finale to Day 2 of the event, leaving lasting memories of camaraderie, celebration, and school spirit across the entire community.

On the third day of the event, the morning session featured Criminology Got Talent, a spectacular showcase of creativity, skill, and passion. From singing and dancing to unique performances, every participant captivated the audience with their talent and dedication, turning the stage into a vibrant display of artistry. The courage and enthusiasm of the performers made the event both inspiring and memorable, leaving lasting impressions of camaraderie, celebration.

Mr. Jaypee Bonga, RCim served as one of the distinguished judges for Criminology Got Talent and also delivered the closing remarks. His insights, encouragement, and expertise added depth and inspiration to the program, enriching the experience for both participants and the audience. Through his guidance, contestants were able to showcase their best, making the talent showcase not only a competition but also a meaningful and memorable highlight of Day 3 of the event.

The excitement then built toward the final and most anticipated event of Day 3 — the Mr. and Ms. Criminology Pageant. This showcase celebrated not only elegance and poise but also intelligence, charisma, and confidence. Each contestant captivated both judges and spectators with their presence and wit, embodying the values of discipline, camaraderie, and excellence. The pageant stood as a grand finale to the celebration.

The culmination of Day 3 was marked by the Mr. and Ms. Criminology Pageant, which brought elegance, charisma, and charm to the stage. Contestants demonstrated confidence, creativity, and strong stage presence, making the competition a distinguished highlight of the celebration. The program concluded with an inspiring message from Ma'am Jayme, who encouraged everyone to continue striving for excellence and to carry forward the spirit of Criminology Days beyond the festivities. This finale served as a memorable and uplifting conclusion.
